

Human Rights. It starts with us.

Why this matters

Human rights are closely connected to fundamental rights to which we are all entitled, from safe working conditions and fair treatment to the opportunity to raise concerns and to be heard.

The updated Human Rights Statement explains how Fresenius approaches these topics and where we focus our efforts.

Our five priority areas

safe working conditions

prevention of exploitation

non-discrimination

access to and quality of healthcare services and products

a clean and healthy environment

What it means for you

Pay attention to risks. Stay alert to situations that could affect people within our operations and along our value chains.

Speak up. Raise concerns early and use the available systems and procedures.

Take decisions with people in mind. Respect for human rights should guide how we act every day.
